FACTS and FANCIES

By Frank Fairborn

They say water works. It may be true, but I never saw it at it in Grimsby.

The only time the water works in Grimsby is when it is "flooding" the rinks in the winter or "filling" the cellars in the spring.

It should scarcely be contended that water works full time in Grimsby, when but few of the people work over half time.

One thing I do know however, and that is that water works the whiskey here for all its worth.

Waterworks, Waterworks
Waterworks or play,
If we must have waterworks
We'll pay, pay, pay.

Well hain't it better to "pay" for waterworks and have em, than to "pay" for property and have nothing, but "smoke."

Mr. Earnest Spears, of Stoney Creek, intends going to the State of Maine to sort apples shortly.—Wentworth Light, Dundas.

Just so! Last Saturday would have been a good day to start the job.

J. G. CLOKE

Bookseller and Stationer
10 James St. S., Hamilton.

John Bull stood this for four years and then he took counsel with his friend "Hans" and together they decided to call on their dear friend Castro and if they didn't get what was coming to them they could at least leave their "calling cards."

Castro, like many another man in this world, would sooner have seen anyone else than the men he owed, so he hung out the sign "not at home."

That bluff didn't go with "Hans" and
"John Bull," so now Castro has his head out of an upstairs window yelling "I want to arbitrate."

How Castro got on to the "arbitration" game, is more than I know, but "on" he is and working it for all it is worth.

Castro is not only working the "arbitration" game, but he is applying it along a new line. He wants to "arbitrate" on the question of whether he will pay his debts or not.

Great Heavens! If Castro succeeds in establishing a precedent of applying "arbitration" to the payment of debts, I'll pull out of the newspaper business right away.

About a thousand people owe me, and if every one of them claimed the right to "arbitrate" on whether they should pay or not I'd be in the "asylum" or "dead" forty years before the cases were all settled. From the "arbitration" fiend good Lord deliver us.

O Castro! O Castro!
You must be full of gastro,
I swear you won't be in it
For a little short-lived minute;
For you haven't got the sand to lasto.

Galt, Ont., Dec. 9.—A very unusual and interesting condition of affairs has arisen in Galt, one probably without precedent.
Early in the year the Town Council passed a by-law prohibiting dogs being allowed to run at large.

A wave of popular antagonism was raised among dog-owners against the measure, and several hundred dollars were subscribed to test the validity of the by-law should the council enforce it.

The by-law has not been repealed, and last night a meeting of dog-owners was held, those present representing what is known as the "Dog-owners League," which has a membership of four hundred, including many influential men of the town.

Dear me! Is not that terrible.
Dog-owners can make fools of themselves as well as anybody else.

What right have dogs to run at large, any more than pigs or cows or colts or sheep?

Dogs are an infernal nuisance running at large in a town. They scratch up lawns, break down flowers, foul goods in front of stores, scare children and horses, fight and howl and otherwise make condemned idiots of themselves, and serve no useful or ornamental purpose.

A dog's place is at home. He should be there like a sentry on duty, or as a companion.

If he is taken on the public street, he should be under the direct control of his owner, the same as a horse.

I'm glad to see that the Council of Galt has some sense, and I'm sorry to see that many of its influential citizens are making consanguine asses of themselves.

On New Year's Day The Toronto Evening News will become a morning paper, under the ownership of J. W. Flavelle and editorship of Mr. Willison, late editor of the Globe.

The Morning News is to be an absolutely "Independent" paper, the mouth-piece of no party, the organ of no corporate interest.

Mr. Willison in assuming this role will be acting directly opposite to what he has been doing in the past. His future course will be watched with interest.

On Thursday last a break occurred in the consolidated Lake Superior stock and in one day values depreciated over twelve million dollars.

Why Not Have The Best

If you must have a piano or organ! The following well known names represent the cream of the piano trade:

CHICKERING, Boston, U.S.A.

BELL, Guelph, Canada.

HAINES BROS., New York, U. S. A.

The "BELL" organ is in a class by itself. It has many competitors, but no equal for tone, finish and durability, while its patrons are found in every corner of the earth. A complete stock of the above instruments is carried in elegant casings in every variety of wood. In addition to these famous makers are offered for your inspection the Palmer piano the Usbridge piano and the Usbridge organ.

The Near Approach of Xmas.

With the very near approach of Christmas, and all the attendant festivities it is a source of great anxiety to make very little go a long way. The selection of something useful as a present should always be the rule with the student of economy, nothing you can give will be more appreciated by the receiver, than an article to wear, it is sure to come in useful sometime. Now what could be better than to give father, brother or sweetheart, a good overcoat, a suit of clothes, a set of underwear, a pair of trousers, a pair of gloves, a pair of silk suspenders, a rain coat, a nice umbrella, one dozen linen collars, an article of neckwear, a night robe, or even a pair of socks would be useful, and consequently would be appreciated. Grafton & Co. are making a special showing of all the above lines, and are selling them at prices that can be reached by the slenderest pocket book. Then for the boys such articles of wearing apparel as raglan overcoats for 3.50; or reefers for 1.95 or a suit from 1.95 up. These are all useful presents and would be more appreciated than some useless article so commonly given by fond parents. Grafton & Co., advise strongly the giving of some article of clothing and advise you to buy it from Grafton & Co. Opp City Hall, 20, 22 & 24 James St. North.

Masonic Service.

Union Lodge, No. 7 A.F. and A.M. Grimsby, accompanied by Brethren from Beamsville and Stoney Creek will attend divine service in the church of England on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 21st at 2.30. The public are cordially invited to attend. Worshipful Brother the Rev. Wm. de la Rosa lately from Trinidad will preach.

The Freemasons of Grimsby have got new light. We do not mean that they have been removing the ancient landmarks which, they say, date back to King Solomon, but they have fitted up their lodge rooms with beautiful electric light fixtures. They now ought to go like lightning.

A meeting of Sympathy.

A meeting was held in the Town Hall, on Monday morning of last week for the purpose of devising means for assisting J. A. Hewitt to re-build his Planing Mill. Mr. W. Forbes acted as Chairman and W. B. Vaudyke as Secretary. On account of the dreadful accident which had occurred the night before, the meeting was not very largely attended. It was the unanimous opinion, however, of those present that the Village should assist Mr. Hewitt in re-building, and a resolution of sympathy was passed and ordered to be sent to him.

Another resolution was also passed, expressing the sorrow of the meeting at the fearful calamity that had visited the homes of some of our citizens, and ordered the Secretary to extend the sympathy of the meeting to the bereaved families.

The Proposition.

Is to provide place to please persons preferring to patronize a hotel where prohibition is practised instead of preached. A hundred homes with a spare bed or two will not satisfy this commercial and social world. There must be a free mingling to do business. Come on now, you people in the majority. We have waited long for nothing, let us labor for something substantial. Ah, but you say, Blair is after what he has lost in the cause. That's not merciful, nor is it just, for I am in earnest in an attempt to interest you and get practical proof and profit for prohibitionists and for myself. If I can save money and help you to save lives and perhaps souls, why do you hesitate to join in. From only a cold monied standpoint one weak fellow might lose all, while a strong company would be successful. Come on now good people, let us do nice pure business and have a lot of fun with nothing stronger than Lucas wine to entertain, I will guarantee many a laughable story and music

Grimsby, Dec. 15th, 1902.

Mr. Foreman Gets a Ring.

Mr. Arthur E. Foreman, of Hamilton, son of Rev. R. J. Foreman, of this town, who has been for the last ten years in the Carpet Department with T. C. Watkins, of the Right House, has removed to Toronto to become assistant Manager in the Carpet Department of the Robert Simpson Co., establishment on Young Street.

Before leaving, a number of his friends from the Right House met at his home and presented him with a very costly and beautiful gold ring as a mark of their esteem and good will.

About two years ago, on the occasion of his marriage, the same parties presented him with a very handsome and expensive dinner set.

Village Council.

The Village Council held its regular December meeting on Monday evening Dec. 15th.

Reeve Wismer in the chair, Councilors Mitchell and Cole present.

Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed.

The G. T. R. wrote stating that the crossing repairs east of the station would be attended to.

Mr. Doran representing a deputation addressed the council and asked that a grant be made to assist Jas. A. Hewitt who met with such a severe loss by fire on Dec. 6th.

Moved by Mitchell seconded by Cole that the Clerk prepare a By-law to grant by way of bonus the sum of $1000 to Jas. A. Hewitt to assist him to rebuild his mill lately burned in the village, and that this council hold a special meeting on Thursday, Dec. 18th, at 9 p.m. to considered same, and for other business. Carried.

Accounts to the amount of $516.32 were passed.

W. Farrow who was wrongfully assessed for dog will receive $1.00 back. Council adjourned.

Beamsville, Dec. 17.

Mrs. D. B. Poole has fully recovered after her recent illness.

Messrs. J. Jennings and D. Campbell, of Toronto, were guests at "Invergnie" over Sunday.

Miss Scott, of Arnprior, is home for the holidays.

Miss Jean Gibson has returned from a pleasant visit in Toronto.

The town is rather quiet again since the departure of the model students. Inspector Ireland and Principal Talbot having completed the series of examinations on Friday.

Miss Cora Smith, of Jordan, was visiting friends in town last week.

A number of the citizens attended the funeral in Grimsby on Thursday.

Mr. R. Constable, of Thorold, has returned to town, to resume work in the Quarry.

Miss Astle and Master Lotne, of St.
David, who have been the guests of Mrs.
Wm. Astle have returned home.

Mrs. A. L. Conise, who has had a severe attack of the grippe is recovering.

Mr. C. E. Hall has secured the services of Miss Bertha Finbow for the Xmas season.

The children of the Presbyterian Sunday School are busy practising for the Annual Xmas tree. As the vocal part is under the leadership of Mr. H. Forsythe it is sure to be a brilliant success.

Miss Myrtle Book, of Grimsby, is the guest of her friend, Miss Bella Wood.

Miss Lenore and Norman Wright have returned from a visit at Burlington Beach.

Rev. S. M. Jones intends continuing his school after Xmas as he has a splendid class in training.

Some of our young men paid Grimsby a flying visit on Sunday night.

Mr. Floyd Nelles was visiting at the Couse House on Sunday.

Mr. Duncan Mavor has returned from a business trip to Chicago.

Very feeling references were made in the different churches on Sunday last, in memory of the sad bereavement which befell Grimsby on the Sunday night previous.

Beamsville Express Sold.

The Beamsville Express was offered for public sale on Friday of last week, but was held by the reserved bid, which was made up of claims by Mr. Riggins and Mr. Bywater. It was reported later Mr. Riggins had closed a deal with Mr. Bywater for the paper.

This is Our Own Norman.

From Kingston Daily British Whig, Dec. 4th
The evening programme of the Concert in Cooke's Church, Kingston, Dec.
2nd was a specially strong one. But of many there who were good, the entertainment of the evening was Norman C. McIntyre, of Beamsville, a member of Queen's Dramatic Club, who was twice recalled. Mr. McIntyre very quickly gained the favor of his audience, and showed most decided dramatic ability.

coat. That's what the weatherman says and he's an authority who must be respected. You rely on us to sell you the best possible for your money and we do. Don't misjudge our little prices. These we speak of below for instance. They are equal to those sold in the high rent stores at half as much again and we ourselves have sold them for more. Grosvenors made up in every desirable fabric with good trimmings, $7.00, Grosvenors, a special line at $10.00.

Looking After the Drainage.

Alderman W. J. Reid has been busy during the past week arranging for the disposal of the water on King Street, and which will come down the hill along side of the new tramway. He has put in sewer pipe down Ontario Street as far as Reeve Carr's house, and will convey all the water off King Street in that direction.
The sewer pipe will be covered over so that it will give increased width to road and at the same time do effective work as a drain.

Fire! Fire! Fire!

My Planing Mill has been destroyed by fire, but I am pleased to be able to say that a large amount of lumber, shingles, lath, sash doors, etc., was saved, and I shall be pleased to have all my old customers and as many new ones as will favor me with their patronage. Call on me and I will supply your wants to the best of my ability. I shall be pleased to receive any contracts for new building and carpenter work.

High Tariff Vs. Low Tariff.

The great question before Canadians to-day is the tariff. From one end to the other of this broad Dominion the question of a high or low tariff is being discussed. Honest discussion is what the people of Canada want. It will be interesting to know that the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal has opened its columns for a full and free discussion of this important question. The leaders of both political parties are invited to give their views.

Farmers, manufacturers, importers, etc.,
will have an opportunity to express themselves. The Family Herald, being a purely non-political paper, absolutely independent of all political parties or interests, is the one paper in Canada wherein such an open discussion can be carried on. With the Family Herald and Weekly Star's immense circulation at every post office in the Dominion, this will be a splendid opportunity for the leaders of both parties to air their views on the tariff question, and the public will naturally expect to hear from them through the Family Herald and Weekly Star. The discussion will be watched and read with interest.

Another Railroad.

The Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto Railroad Company has decided to continue their line from Port Dalhousie to Hamilton. Ground was broken at Port Dalhousie last week.
In an interview with Mr. E. E. Seixas,
THE INDEPENDENT was informed that it had been definitely decided long ago to extend the line to Hamilton, but on account of being delayed with work in New York State, and further on account of the fact that it was impossible to get men this fall, the work was laid over until spring. As soon as it is possible in the spring to work the ground, the construction work will be pushed forward in order to reach Hamilton next year if possible.
Mr. Seixas says that the road now controls sufficient through freight to earn running expenses and he expects to develop large fruit and passenger trade along the route of the new road.
The road will run close to the lake
from Port Dalhousie to Jordan Harbor, it will then strike Beamsville, Grimsby Park and Grimsby, and continue from Grimsby on the south side of the Grand Trunk close to that road until Winona is reached then it will take Barton Street and run straight into Hamilton.

Facts and Fancies.

On the day following, the stock declined still further, until the depreciation in the two days amounted to over twenty millions dollars.

This fearful drop was caused by the shutting down of the Clergue Steel Rail Mills at Saulte Ste. Marie.

These mills were built for the purpose of converting our Canadian ores into steel rails, and have succeeded in securing orders enough to keep them running up to the present time.

All the orders were filled, however, and the mills had to be shut down last week.

This was caused by the slaughter prices of German steel rails, which are allowed to come into Canada "free of duty."

There is a "screw loose" somewhere. Railways are bonused to run to iron mines. Bounties are offered to Steel Rail Mills to work up the iron ore, and then the whole scheme is allowed to be knocked down to the extent of over twenty million, by letting another country send in steel rails at slaughter prices "free of duty."

Tarte drew attention to this matter several months ago, but his "warning" was allowed to go unheeded. Now of course the "barn door" will be locked after the "horse" has been stolen.

Canada is getting too big for one-horse politicians.

It is easy to prove that the gun isn't loaded immediately after the accident.—Montreal Star.

Quite so! But by that time the victim is generally past being convinced.

It is hard for the man who is flat on his back to face the world.—Exchange.

That's so! But he can follow the instruction to "look upwards."

Dundas has the unique, if unenviable, distinction of being one of the few places in which the prohibitionists did not get a majority.—Dundas Banner.

That's nothing extraordinary, after reading the three Dundas papers each week, the people of Dundas feel so dry that they must "drink" or bust.

And that's not all. There's a lot of people in Dundas who don't know that there was a vote on prohibition. In about a month or so they will hear about it and be sorry that they lost their vote.

At a meeting of the Conservatives, of St. Catharines, held on Friday night last, W. B. Bargeyne was nominated as a candidate for the mayoralty for 1903.

Now Billy me boy be careful. You know what they said about you last year.

You don't want to drink, dance, smoke, chew, spit, swear, tell lies, treat or wink at the girls for the next three weeks, or your goose is cooked again.

If a man gets the name of being "good" he's got to be "good" and if he makes the least "break" he's a gone-sucker.

But a "bad" man like Charley Wilson can "cut loose" in all directions and nobody thinks anything about it. In fact, people expect him to be bad, and if he ain't they think he's sick.

So Billy be careful. Oh do be careful.

I see by the daily papers that there was a million cigars went "up in smoke" in Montreal the other night.

That's nothing. I never knew a cigar (except one) that wouldn't go "up in smoke" if it got half a chance.

The one I refer to wasn't a bad looking cigar, but go "up in smoke" go "down in smoke" or go "any other old way in smoke" it wouldn't, and I'm gosh darned if I could make it.

I got it at a hotel in Grimsby (I forget now what the hotel keeper said he paid for it) on a treat—that was the only consolation I had—it cost me nothing, but I spent a lot of time and energy on it and still it wouldn't "go up in smoke."

I rolled it, I rubbed it,
I stabbed it with my knife,
I pinched it, I punched it,
I pulled for all my life.
I rammed it, I jammed it,
I threw it in the well,
The man that sold me that cigar
Should take a trip to Kalamazoo.

The war between Venezuela and England and Germany is the most civil war ever fought. The Venezuelan Government has put all the English and German residents of Caracas in gaol, to prevent them getting hurt; and the Anglo-German fleet has sunk the Venezuelan navy, to save the Venezuelan sailors from the awful risk of going to sea in it.—Montreal Star.

Yes, and Castro wants to "arbitrate" to find out whether he should pay his debts or not.

If they abolish the bar in Ontario, there will be an exodus of lawyers to Quebec—and of their clients too.—A Quebec Paper.

One trip will do them. Anyone who gets one dose of Quebec rot-gut will never want another.

Lake Michigan had a close call. Capt Corson brought her over from Oswego through an awful Lake Erie gale.—Hamilton Spectator.

Well, well! Is not that shocking? A steamboat brought over from Oswego to Hamilton through an "awful Lake Erie" gale.

Seems to me that steamboat captain was going to a lot of bother to go up to "Lake Erie" for a gale when he could have had all the gale he wanted on Lake Ontario.

Is the Spectator quite sure that it wasn't a "Welland Canal gale."

I don't see how a "Lake Erie gale" could get at a boat on Lake Ontario without coming down the "Welland Canal" and being effected by the fierce breezes that sometimes blow along that waterway. Study your Geography specky.

4th.—That in future no expense re McKinnon prizes be paid by this council—Report of Education Committee at County Council.

There's a good thing! The council has got tired footing the bills for the McKinnon prizes.

Here's a nice little item in the committee's report:

W. W. Ireland McKinnon prizes, $28.70
A. J. Painter " " 5.40

A. N. Meyer " " 6.40
A. N. Zimmerman " " 4.80

That's the way the money goes, pop goes the weasel, but the county won't pay the shot anymore.

A BRIGHT NEWSPAPER.

13 Months for $3.

The Toronto World gives the most accurate market reports of any paper. The fruit market, cattle market and produce market are all covered by a reporter who spent years of his life on a farm near Markham, and he understands thoroughly how important it is to get correct market prices for readers throughout the country.

The World has over 6,000 farm subscribers. Any reader of THE INDEPENDENT who subscribes before the end of the year can get the World for thirteen months for $3.

W. F. Maclean, M.P., Managing Editor of the World, has a newspaper with over 28,000 regular subscribers, which is the largest exclusive morning circulation of any paper published in Canada.

The World has been aptly named "Canada's Brightest Newspaper." It has nearly 1,500 daily subscribers in Hamilton.

In sending money through the mail postal notes should be used. They are the safest and best mail currency, and any profit made in the post office department goes directly back to the people.

A Paper for Boys.

"East and West. A Paper for Young Canadians" is the attractive title of a handsome, eight page illustrated weekly, issued from the Publication Offices of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, Toronto. It well deserves success. Its literary standard is high, and the printers have spared no pains to make it a credit mechanically. The opening continued story is by J. Macdonald Oxley, illustrated by J. E. Laughlin, both of them Canadians and each well known in his own special field. A story by Ralph Connor is promised in an early number. Indeed, the whole atmosphere of the paper is wholesomely Canadian and we should expect that East and West will meet a warm welcome outside as well as within the Presbyterian Church. Rev. R. Douglas Fraser and Rev. J. M. Duncan are the editors.

Clubbing Rates.

Nearly every person wants to take an outside paper as well as their own local paper. In order that the readers of THE INDEPENDENT may save a little money on their outside subscription, THE INDEPENDENT has made arrangements by which it can give all the best papers of Canada at a reduction when clubbing with THE INDEPENDENT for instance, you can get THE INDEPENDENT and the Toronto Globe for $1.60, THE INDEPENDENT and the Mail for $1.70, THE INDEPENDENT and the Herald and Weekly Star for $1.75, THE INDEPENDENT and the Hamilton Spectator or Times at $1.75, and THE INDEPENDENT and the Farmers Advocate at $1.75, and THE INDEPENDENT and the Farm & Home at $1.15, THE INDEPENDENT and the Canadian Poultry Review $1.15. Other papers at a similar low rate when ordered with THE INDEPENDENT.

It may seem a very common-place statement to say that never before have we produced Overcoats that were so close up to perfection as this season. The big company that owns this business realises that the ready-made clothing trade in Canada is now on an equal footing with the same business in the United States. The ideas of skilled designers from the largest centers across the line are now incorporated in all the clothing produced by the Sanford Manufacturing Co., and we invite you to see what we know is by far the best tailored, best designed and most worthy garments for men we ever had the pleasure of showing. Do you feel interested enough in good clothes to drop in and see the ten dollar Overcoats we claim to be worth a good deal more?

The Story of the Black Dog.

By C. K. BURROW.

The following mysterious story is taken from C. W. Burrow's new book, "Patricia of the Hills." The narrator is an elderly lady, Mrs. Charteris, who relates the incident as an example of Irish folk-tale, but who more than half believes it:

My grandfather, Patrick Gavan, of Fermoy, was a quiet man to look at—slight, neither tall nor short, with a face that was always pale, dead pale, and eyes that never flinched from man or devil. But, though he looked quiet, he was as wild a roystering fellow as ever stepped on two feet, ready to do the first thing that came into his head, good or bad; it was his misfortune that the bad came the easiest. He had a way with him that made him welcome wherever he went, and many a man, and many a woman, took the day that Patrick Gavan's black eyes first crossed theirs. Well, he married at last, and took his bride to the house on the banks of the Blackwater. She was a lovely, sweet creature, gentle and timid, as you may see from her portrait there; they were as badly matched as tiger and fawn, and she soon began to droop. He was not unkind to her; my grandfather never ill-used a woman; but after a time he took to his old ways, and she just sat down and watched and wondered where it would end. He was a terribly hard drinker, but his head was so strong that he himself seldom got drunk, and one of his delights was to get together a dozen of his wildest neighbors at a great dinner, and see them go under the table one by one. When this kind of thing was going on, his wife would sit in her own room and listen and tremble; once she had tried to get in, but the door was locked, which frightened her more than if she had seen the poor fools soaking their brains within. She crept back to her little oratory and spent the night on her knees, praying for herself, husband and the child that was to call him father.

When the child was born, and for a month after, my grandfather was quiet as a lamb; that was the happiest time of the woman's life, for he would carry the boy up and down, and up and down, never tiring, while she watched him from the bed she was too weak to leave. She thought to herself that her prayers were answered, and that Patrick was a changed man; and he saw what was in her mind and kept a tight hold on himself; but after a time the devil got him by the throat again, and he must needs be at the old tricks.

The fancy that took him to have one of his dinners, and he arranged it all without letting a word reach his wife; but, in case she should hear, he invited Father Coghlan, the priest who had christened the boy, with the rest. When the night came the poor sick lady was lying up in her room, and he went to her before the guests arrived—I dare say feeling remorseful at heart—and sat down with the boy on his knees.

"Is it cold?" she asked.

"Yes, and with snow on the ground," said he.

"Why, my child?"

"Nothing," she said, and stretched a thin hand to him across the bed. He took it in his and kissed it. "It's a cold little hand," he said.

"As cold as a snowflake," said he, and smiled softly, and asked for the boy. He laid him on her breast, the child that was to be my father, and she closed her eyes and seemed to sleep. Then he went down to receive the mad guests.

After the eating was over and the wine carried in (those were the claret-drinking days, you must remember), my grandfather locked the door, as usual, and clapped a brace of loaded pistols on the table. "The man who stirs from this room," said he, "before the last bottle is empty, knows what to expect."

Everyone there, except Father Coghlan, was used to this business of the pistols. The priest looked from them to the locked door and back at Gavan with a queer light in his eyes, but he said nothing—only rubbed his chin and drew his under lip back over his teeth.

Well, the drinking began, and went on hour after hour. My grandfather sat pale and upright at the head of his table, while the air grew hotter and the fumes of the liquor reeked stronger and stronger; the table was all splashed and dabbled with wine, men's beards were wet with it; some of them fell forward with spread arms and slept; others slipped to the ground and lay there like logs.

I know this is not a pretty story for a woman to tell, but it's true, and I can see it all. God help the men, I say, who did such things!

There Patrick Gavan sat, and his own glass was never empty; neither was the priest's, but when he raised it it was only to moisten his grandfather, and ever his face grew harder, and gray with the kind of bitter sadness. At last Gavan saw that he was not drinking, and rose.

"Father Coghlan," he said, "drink."

"A host does not command his guests," said the priest.

"I command mine," cried the other. "I shall not drink, and I bid you open that door and let me go."

My grandfather caught and balanced one of the pistols in his hand.

"You can't frighten me," said the priest. "I command you, in God's name, to open that door, and let me leave this hell's kitchen!"

"Drink!" said Gavan, setting a pair of lips.

At that moment Father Coghlan lifted a warning hand.

"Hush!" he said, "I hear a cry!"

"It's the wind."

"It's no wind, but a child or a woman."

"I hear nothing. Drink!"

As the last word left his lips, there came a hurried scratching at the door; a minute later it sounded under the window. The two men looked at each other, the priest had gone as pale as death, but he stood ready, with the fingers of one hand clasped tightly round a cross which he wore. The scratching went on, and my grandfather moved to the window and opened it, still carrying the pistol in his hand. A black dog leaped into the room, and a breath of cold air followed him. The dog's coat was dry, and his feet were dry, and he made no marks upon the polished floor.

The creature ran around and sniffed at the drunken sleepers, turned aside from the priest, and then paused before Gavan, with his eyes shining like coals, and his tongue lolling out at the side of his mouth. It was no dog of my grandfather's, nor had he ever seen it before.

"Go to hell!" he cried, and fired full at its head. The lock snapped, and there the dog still stood, watching, with his wicked eyes fixed on Gavan, and his red tongue quivering. Just then they both heard a cry, clear and shrill as the call of a peewit; the dog lifted his black head, and in a second had jumped through the open window without a sound.

There was no need for the priest to speak again; in a flash my grandfather had the door open, and they both ran upstairs to the wife's room. She was lying dead, with the child asleep on her breast, and on her hand, as plain as letters in a book, was a red mark in the shape of a dog's tongue.

You might have supposed that this would change my grandfather's life. Well, it did, for some years. He looked after the boy, taught him to ride as soon as he could walk, gave him all the freedom that was good for him, and perhaps more, and saw him grow up into a fine healthy lad of skill or endurance, and had a sound brain as well. But I think it must be the hardest thing in the world for a man who has once led the kind of life my grandfather was used to to leave it altogether behind him. When the boy no longer needed his personal protection, and the occupation of teaching him had passed to other hands, he began to cast back to the old ways; and if these had been bad in the young man they were ten times worse in the old. Yet he had a curious delicacy in everything that affected my father, gave him good counsel from the depths of his own experience, and concealed from him the unsound places in his own life. But the lad heard stories and kept his eyes open, and knew many things which his father would have given his heart's blood to conceal. The boy, however, had a clean, upright soul, and his mother's strain to the good; and so escaped the fire.

One day my grandfather rode back with his horse all a-foam from a place some twenty miles away, where he had been on no good errand. Times and customs had changed for the better, and there were no young men to fill up the place of the dead who had been his fellows in his wicked carousals. But there were still five or six left, and these he had bidden to a dinner; my father, he thought, was away, but during the day he had returned, and hearing what was afoot, had made up his mind to slip into the butler's little room, which opened out of the dining-room, when the servants were dismissed.

When Patrick Gavan reached home it was already evening; he had ridden hard and far, and was in no condition to enter upon the night's work, but that fact made him the more determined to see it through. He dressed hurriedly, and by the time the guests were to arrive he was ready. But the hour struck and passed, and no guests came; and then, turning to the calendar, he found that he had made a mistake in the date, and that that day's preparations should have been made for the morrow. However, he sat down to table, where all the covers were laid, and had every course served, and the wine brought in; and when the time came, he sent the servants away, locked the door, and laid the pistols beside him.

It was winter again, and the night was still and cold. The house was as quiet as an empty room, so that the sound of the Blackwater running at the foot of the garden could be heard where my grandfather sat. He shivered, and threw more logs on the fire, which already blazed like a furnace; then he began to drink.

The hours slipped by until it was past midnight, at which time Gavan rose and addressed each empty place in turn, as though his friends were there, asking them to drink with him; but there were only six places laid, and he called twelve names, and the last that he called was Father Coghlan's.

"Father Coghlan," he cried, "drink!"

He stood with his glass raised, and his gaze fixed at the level of a man's eyes, his pale face set in a grim smile. He saw the priest before him as plainly as I see you, and he must have heard him speak as well, for after a time he said:

"I hear nothing. Drink!"

And then, on a sudden, there came a scratching at the door. The glass slanted in his hand and some wine splashed upon the table; but he steadied himself with an oath, drank, and sat down; still looking toward the place where the priest had sat. Presently where the priest had sat, a moment later it sounded from beneath the window. At that Gavan's jaw dropped, and a sweat broke out upon his white face, but he did not stir. The scratching went on, low at first, and then

VARICOCELE

No matter how serious your case may be, our NEW METHOD TREATMENT will cure it. The "varicose veins" return to their normal condition and hence the sexual organs receive proper nourishment. The organs become vitalized and usually power returns. No temporary benefit, but a permanent cure assured. NO CURE, NO PAY. NO OPERATION NECESSARY. NO DETENTION FROM BUSINESS.

STRICTURE

Thousands of young and middle-aged men are troubled with this disease—many unconsciously. They may have a smarting sensation, sharp, cutting pains at times, weak erections, and all the symptoms of nervous debility—they have failed to cure. Don't let doctors experiment on you by cutting, stretching or leeching. This will not cure you, as it will return. Our NEW METHOD TREATMENT absorbs the stricture tissue, hence removes the stricture permanently. It can never return. No pain, no swelling, no detention from business by our method. The sexual organs are strengthened, the nerves are invigorated, and the blood of manhood returns.

Cures Guaranteed

We treat and cure BLOOD POISON, NEURALGIA, RHEUMATISM, GOUT, GRAVEL, CALCULI, BLINDNESS, DEAFNESS, EPILEPSY, CONSUMPTION, BRUISES, SCALDS, BURNS, MOLES, WARTS, ITCHING, AND ALL OTHER SKIN DISEASES FOR A SMALL FEE.

louder and fiercer, until it seemed like a voice calling to him to open; after a time it drew him to his feet and a few paces toward the window, and as it increased it drew him farther, until at last his hand was on the bar of the shutter; and he threw the shutter back and opened the window, and a black dog leapt into the room. His coat was wet, as though he had swum the river, and his head was wet, but he made no mark upon the floor. His eyes were blazing, and his tongue was lolling out of his mouth; but there was no sound of breathing nor any sign of moisture about the jaws.

My grandfather walked back to the table, took up a pistol, and sat down. The dog ran around the room, sniffing at every vacant place, and then paused before Gavan. He took a steady sight and pulled the trigger; the lock snapped, and there the dog stood still, with his wicked eyes on my grandfather's face.

And then my father, who was watching all this from the little room, heard a clear, shrill cry, though whether Gavan uttered it he could not tell, and the black dog ran past the chair and around it, the pistol fell, and the creature was across the floor and out of the window quick as the shadow of a flying bird.

The boy broke out of his hidden place, hot with terror. Patrick Gavan was dead, and on his right hand was a red mark in the shape of a dog's tongue.

A Little Study in Expression.

"Life."

Who said "Amen!"

Last week a man entered the cafe of one of the clubs in New York, called for a glass of brandy, drank it and fell dead. The verdict was death from heart disease, but the incident recalls the story of poor Frank Brower, to whom a new barkeeper at the Metropolitan Hotel said, "Just pay for that brandy before you drink it!" "What?" stammered Brower; "is it so in-instantaneous in its effects?"

A Healthy Appetite.

Lady (to gardener)—Have you had your dinner, John?

John—Not yet, mum. I must 'eat the green-house first.—"Punch."

"This is tough luck," said Ham, mournfully, as he leaned over the side of the ark.

"What's wrong now?" queried Shem.

"Why, all this water to fish in," replied Ham, "and only two fish!"

"worms on board!"—Ohio "State Journal."

Extraordinary Business Increase.

The subscription receipts of the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal have grown to such an enormous extent that the publishers have been forced to discontinue all soliciting for new subscribers during December and confine all their energies to the handling of renewal subscriptions. It is said the demand from new subscribers to get on the Family Herald's mailing lists have made it absolutely necessary to suspend the soliciting of new business and accept only renewals and new subscriptions that are sent in unsolicited. The immense improvements in the agricultural columns of that paper are the direct cause of such an unusual demand from new subscribers.

The Independent and the Farmer's Sun.

There are excellent agricultural papers in Canada and there are other papers which furnish interesting comment on political and current events in general. There is but one paper which combines both departments and in both reaches the highest possible standard of merit. This paper is THE SUN. On the first page of that journal is given a survey by Hystander, of matters of world-wide interest together with editorial comment on Canadian public affairs, those more particularly affecting the farmers receiving the

Buried Side by Side.

The Bodies of Harry M. Bready, Gertrude Hainer and Maud Hughes will rest side by side in Queen's Lawn Cemetery.

An Immense Concourse of People Gather to Pay their Last Respects to the Dead.

The funerals of the three victims of the accident at the G. T. R. Station on the night of Sunday, Dec. 7th, took place on Thursday afternoon last from the Methodist Church. The whole town had been in mourning for the week and never has there been such an exhibition of sympathy and heartfelt sorrow as was exhibited by the enormous concourse of people, who came together on Thursday last to show respect and to perform the last sad rites to the three young people who were so suddenly and terribly snatched from our midst.

Early on the morning of Thursday the three caskets which had become mounds of flowers were removed from the town hall and placed in front of the pulpit of the Methodist Church. The church was not draped in any way excepting the pulpit; the people's sorrow and affection, taking flowers as the emblem of their mourning, and no more beautiful sight could be witnessed than the banks of flowers that covered and surrounded the caskets.

Never was there such a crowd of people together in Grimsby to pay respect to the dead. The hour of the service was set for two o'clock and long before that time the body of the church was filled to the doors. The aisles and vestibules were also crowded to overflowing.

The casket containing the remains of Miss Maud Hughes stood a little to one side of the pulpit in front. The casket containing all that was mortal of Miss Gertrude Hainer occupied a similar position on the other side, while the casket containing the remains of Harry M. Bready stood higher on the platform in the centre.

The floral offerings were most beautiful and room could scarcely be found for them on and around the caskets. The Village Council placed a large pillow of most beautiful flowers on each casket. The 19th. Regiment, of St. Catharines, of which Harry M. Bready was a member, sent a beautiful design in the shape of the letter "A" Harry being a member of Company "A." Bands of boys and girls around the village who had been on intimate terms with the deceased, clustered together and brought wreaths, pillows, crosses and crescents and floral designs of all kinds and placed them upon the caskets. Religious societies also sent beautiful floral designs as well as many friends of the families. Private individuals also, who were not related, showed their deep sympathy by sending beautiful flowers, so that although the death of the young people was sudden and tragic all that could be possibly done to remove the sting was done by kind and sympathetic friends in preparing the bodies for burial.

The services in the church were conducted by Rev. W. F. Hollirake, Rev. A. B. Cohoe and Rev. John Muir. Rev. A. B. Cohoe delivering the funeral address. It was a most trying position for Mr. Cohoe, the three young people having attended his church on Sunday evening and five minutes after leaving the church door had been ushered into eternity. His remarks were most beautiful, forcible and suitable to the occasion and they will no doubt leave a lasting impression on many a mind.

The music was provided by a large choir picked from all the village churches, Mrs. W. Mitchell presiding at the organ. Miss Annie Plain and Miss William Brodie sang in sweetly solemn tones "On the Resurrection Morning." The hymns by the choir were "Jesus Lover of my Soul" and "Rock of Ages."

The pallbearers for Miss Hainer were, Jas. Farewell, Fred Oakes, Harry Schwab, Roy Johnson, Herbert Gilmore and Chas. Plain. For Miss Hughes they were, E. Hunter, Clara Patterson, Jesse Angle, Hall Book, Harry Anderson and Henry Culp.

On account of the arrival of Mr. J. R. Bready, of Emo, Ont., the interment of the body of Harry M. Bready did not take place Thursday afternoon, but took place on Friday afternoon after the arrival of the boy's father.

It was a sad sight indeed, and one that will never be forgotten by the hundreds of people who witnessed it, to see the two hearse move slowly away from the church door bearing all that was mortal of two bright and beautiful young women, born and reared in the village, and loved and respected by a large circle of friends.

The funeral procession almost reached from the church to the cemetery, and although a blizzard was blowing off the lake, hundreds of ladies followed the hearse to the graveside.

Graves were dug in the centre of Queen's Lawn Cemetery side by side, in one of the most beautiful lots in that beautiful resting place of the dead. Harry Bready's grave is the centre one and on the right hand side lies Miss Gertrude Hainer, and on the left hand side lies Miss Maud Hughes. The Rev. C. R. Lee read the beautiful funeral service of the Church of England, and the Rev. A. B. Cohoe closed the service with a short prayer.

Lieutenant F. C. McCordick, Commanding Officer of Co. "A," 19th. Regiment, St. Catharines, and Quarter Masters Sergeant, T. Parnell, of the 19th. Regiment, were present to pay their last respects to Bugler Bready, and to extend their sympathy on behalf of "A" Company to the private members of the comrade's family. Mr. Wallace, G. T. R. Station Agent, and Mr. Moran, G. T. R. Ticket Agent, at Hamilton, were present. A large number of friends of the deceased young ladies were present from Hamilton, Toronto, St. Catharines and other places. Miss Kneeland, cousin of Harry Bready, and Miss Edith Bready, his only sister, of Strathroy, arrived in Grimsby Tuesday night and remained until after the funeral.

The funeral was in charge of Undertaker Mr. J. C. Marlatt, and he was assisted by Mr. W. Camp, Undertaker, of Smithville. After the funeral Mr. Marlatt took charge of the beautiful floral offerings and sent them to the homes of Miss Hughes and Miss Hainer, where they were viewed by many sorrowing friends, and afforded at least one bright spot in the dark cloud that hung over those homes.

Mr. J. R. Bready arrived in Grimsby, on Friday morning, and the funeral of his son took place on Friday afternoon. The pallbearers were, A. Leishman, Jesse Angle, Henry Culp, Jas. Blair, Irvin Hummel and Robt. Snyder. Rev. W. F. Hollirake conducted the service.

THE INQUEST

Dr. Goodman and the twelve Jurors completed the inquest on Thursday morning, Dec. 11th, and the jury returned their verdict. A large number of witnesses were examined and their evidences put in brief, were:

First—That the bodies of Harry M. Bready, Gertrude Hainer and Maud Hughes were found on the south track of the G. T. Railroad in the station yard at Grimsby, on Sunday night, Dec. 7th, about 10:30.

Second—That the three young people came to their death by being struck by the west bound express, which passed through the station at 8:35.

Third—That at the same time or a few moments sooner a freight train passed east on the north track.

Fourth—That the last seen of the young people was about one or two minutes before the accident, when they were seen about fifty yards from the track on Depot street by Jas. Blair, they were then going north toward the tracks.

Fifth—According to the evidences of all the train hands the usual signals were given for the station and the crossing, and that no one of the train hands, not even the engineer of the express had seen anyone, either around or on the crossing.

Sixth—That the crossing at the G. T. R. Station in Grimsby is a most dangerous one and in the opinion of many witnesses should have a night watchman or gates.

JURY'S VERDICT.

That Miss M. Hughes, Miss Gertrude Hainer and Mr. H. M. Bready came to their deaths on the evening of Sunday, the 7th Dec. 1902, at the Depot street crossing of the G. T. R. in the Village of Grimsby, at 8:35 p.m., by being struck by the Locomotive of the west bound express, No. 17 of the G. T. R.

The Jury further find that the fatality was due to culpable neglect of the authorities or the G. T. R. Co. in not providing gates or night watchman, and lights at the said crossing, to safeguard the lives of people using the thoroughfare, on which 5 tracks of the said Railroad are now laid.

The Jury are of the opinion that the Legislative and Municipal representatives of the County of Lincoln should

Sick Blood

Feed pale girls on Scott's Emulsion.

We do not need to give all the reasons why Scott's Emulsion restores the strength and flesh and color of good health to those who suffer from sick blood.

The fact that it is the best preparation of Cod Liver Oil, rich in nutrition, full of healthy stimulation is a suggestion as to why it does what it does.

Scott's Emulsion presents Cod Liver Oil at its best, fullest in strength, least in taste.

Young women in their "teens" are permanently cured of the peculiar disease of the blood which shows itself in paleness, weakness and nervousness, by regular treatment with Scott's Emulsion.

It is a true blood food and is naturally adapted to the cure of the blood sickness from which so many young women suffer.

We will be glad to send a sample to any sufferer.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

Handsome Windows.

The most handsome dressed windows that Grimsby's shoppers have ever been favored with seeing, in this town, are those at the Central Store. The two dry goods windows are dressed in a manner that would do credit, not only to Hamilton or Toronto window dresser, but that would attract attention in Montreal, Philadelphia, or even New York. Mr. M. Secor certainly deserves great praise for the artistic work in those windows. Mr. Hawke is to be congratulated that one of his staff is able to make his shop front look so very attractive.

The grocery windows, dressed by Mr. Stubs, are also very fine, and while it is not possible to make as handsome a window with groceries as dry goods, yet, Mr. Stubs deserves credit for the handsome display of good things which he sets forth in the grocery windows.

North Grimsby Council.

North Grimsby Council met in the town hall on Monday, Dec. 15th, 1902 at 11 a.m. Reeve Thomas W. Allan in the chair, Councillors Beamer, Hagar, Nelles and Walker present.

Minutes of last meeting read and adopted.

Road Commissioner Hurst for the east, and Road Commissioner Walker for the west handed in their reports.

A By-law appointing places and the returning officers for the election was passed. The polling places and nomination places will be as usual. The returning officers will be John Kerman at Grimsby Park, and Chas. R. Hockey at Dr. Alway's school house.

A number of accounts were passed including $11.24 the townships share of the new table placed in the town hall by W. Forbes.

The council adjourned.

THE Terrible Hollow

Or Bush Life in Australia.

By the author of "The Squatter's Dream".

"Tell me this," she said, leaning forward, putting one hand on my shoulder, while she seemed to look through the very soul of me—her face grew deadly pale, and her lips trembled, as I'd seen them do once before when she was regular beyond herself—"will you take me with you when you go for good and all? I'm ready to follow you round the world. Don't be afraid of my temper. No woman that ever lived ever did more for the man she loved than I'll do for you. If Jeanie's good to Jim—and you know she is—I'll be twice the woman to you, or I'll die for it. Don't speak!" she went on; "I know I threw you over once. I was mad with rage and shame. You know I had cause, hadn't I, Dick? You know I had. To spite you, I throw away my own life then; now it's a misery and a torment to me every day I live. I can bear it no longer, I tell you. It's killing me—killing me day by day. Only say the word, and I'll join you in Melbourne within a week—to be yours, and yours only, as long as I live."

I didn't think there was that much of the loving nature about her. She used to vex me by being hard and uncertain when we were courting. I knew then she cared about me, and I hadn't a thought about any other woman. Now when I didn't ask her to bother herself about me, and only to let me alone and go her own way, she must turn the tables on me, and want to ruin the pair of us slap over again. She'd thrown her arms round my neck and was sobbing on my shoulder when she finished. I took her over to the sofa, and made her sit down by the side of me.

"Kate," I said, "this won't do. There's neither rhyme nor reason about it. I'm as fond of you as ever I was, but you must know well enough if you make a bolt of it now there'll be no end of a hobbler, and everybody's thoughts will be turned our way. We'll be clean bowled—the lot of us. Jim and I will be juggled. You and Jeanie will be left to the mercy of the world, worse off by a precious sight than ever you were in your lives. Now, if you look at it, what's the good of spoiling the whole jimbang for a fancy notion about me? You and I are safe to be first-rate friends always, but it will be the ruin of both of us if we're fools enough to want to be more. You've got a good husband, that's proud of you and gives you everything you can think of. You took him yourself, and you're bound to stick to him. Besides, think of poor Jeanie and Jim. You'll spoil all their happiness; and, more than all—don't make any mistake—you know what Jeanie thinks of a woman who leaves her husband for another man."

If you let a woman have a regular good cry and talk herself out, you can mostly bring her round in the end. So after a bit Kate grew more reasonable. That bit about Jeanie fetched her too. She knew her own sister would turn against her—not harsh like, but she'd never be the same to her again as long as she lived.

The lamp had been put out in the big hall. There was only one in this parlour, and it wasn't over bright. I talked away, and last of all she came round to my way of thinking; at any rate not to want to clear off from the old man now, but to wait till I came back, or till I wrote to her.

"You are right, Dick," she said at last, "and you show your sense in talking the way you have; though, if you loved as I do, you could not do it. But, once more, there's no other woman that you're fonder of than me? It isn't that that makes you so good? Dick Marston good?" and here she laughed bitterly. "If I thought that I should go mad."

What was I to do? I could not tell her that I loved Gracey Storefield ten times as much as I'd ever cheated myself into thinking I cared about her. So I swore that I cared more for her than any woman in the whole world, and always had done so.

This steadied her. We parted good friends, and she promised to keep quiet and try and make the best of things. She turned up the lamp to show me the way out, though the outer door of the hall was left open night and day. It was a way we had at the Turon; no one troubled themselves to be particular about such trifles as furniture and so on. There was very little small robbery there; it was not worth while. All petty stealers were most severely punished into the bargain.

As I stood up to say good-bye a small note dropped out of my breast-pocket. It had shifted somehow. Kate always had an eye like an hawk. With one spring she pounced upon it, and before I could interfere opened and read it! It was Gracey Storefield's. She stood for one moment and glared in my face. I thought she had gone mad. Then she threw the bit of paper down and trampled upon it, over and over again.

"So, Dick Marston," she cried out heartily, her very voice changed, "you have tricked me a second time! Your own Gracey! your own Gracey! and this, by the date, at the very time you were letting me persuade myself, like a fool, like an idiot that I was, that you still care for me! You have put the cap to your villainy now. And, as God made me, you shall have cause—good cause—to fear the woman you have once betrayed and twice scorned. Look to yourself."

She gazed at me for a moment with a face from which every trace of expression had vanished, except that of the most devilish fury and spite—the face of an evil spirit more than of a woman; and then she walked slowly away. I couldn't help pitying her, though I cursed my own folly, as I had done a thousand times, that I had ever turned my head or spoken a word to her when first she crossed my path. I got into the street somehow; I hardly knew what to think or to do. That danger was close at our heels I didn't doubt for a moment. Everything seemed changed in a minute. What was going to happen? Was I the same Dick Marston that had been strolling up Main Street a couple of hours ago? All but off by the to-morrow evening's coach, and with all the world before me, a good round sum in the bank; but part of a year's hard, honest work it was the price of, too.

Then all kinds of thoughts came into my head. Would Kate, when her burst of rage was over, go in for revenge in cold blood? She could hardly strike me without at the same time hurting Jeanie through Jim. Should I trust her? Would she come fight, kiss and make friends, and call herself a madwoman—a reckless fool—as she'd often done before? No; she was in bitter earnest this time. It did not pay to be slack in making off. Once we had been caught napping, and once was enough.

The first thing to do was to warn Jim—poor old Jim, snoring away, most like, and dreaming of taking the box-seat for himself and Jeanie at the agent's next morning. It seemed cruel to wake him, but it would have been crueler not to do so.

I walked up the narrow track that led up to the little gully with the moon shining down upon the white quartz rock.

Long Hair

"About a year ago my hair was coming out very fast, so I bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor. It stopped the falling and made my hair grow very rapidly, until now it is 45 inches in length."—Mrs. A. Boydston, Atchison, Kans.

There's another hunger than that of the stomach. Hair hunger, for instance. Hungry hair needs food, needs hair vigor—Ayer's. This is why we say that Ayer's Hair Vigor always restores color, and makes the hair grow long and heavy. $1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

If your druggist cannot supply you, send us one dollar and we will express you a bottle. Be sure and give the name of your nearest express office. Address, J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

The pathway wound through a "blow" of it. I threw a pebble at the door and waited till Jim came out.

"Who's there? Oh! It's you, old man, is it? It's rather late for a call; but if you've come to spend the evening I'll get up, and we'll have a smoke, anyhow." "You dress yourself, Jim," I said, "as quick as you can. Put on your hat and come with me; there's something up."

"My God!" says Jim, "what is it? I'm a rank coward now I've got Jeanie. Don't go and tell me we've got to cut and run again."

"Something like it," I said. "If it hasn't come to that yet, it's not far off."

We walked up the gully together. Jim lit his pipe while I told him shortly what had happened to me with Kate.

"May the devil fly away with her!" said Jim savagely, "for a bad-minded, bad-hearted jade; and then he'd wish he'd left her where she was. She'd be no chop-down there even. I think sometimes she can't be Jeanie's sister at all. They must have changed her, and mothered the wrong child on the old woman. My word! but it's no laughing matter. What's to be done?"

"There's no going away by the coach to-morrow, I'm afraid. She's just the woman to tear straight up the camp and let it all out before her temper cooled. It would take a week to do that. The sergeant or Sir Ferdinand knows all about it now. They'll lose no time, you may be certain."

"And must I leave without saying good-night to Jeanie?" says Jim. "No, by—! If I have half-a-dozen bullets through me, I'll go back and hold her in my arms once more before I'm hunted off and through the country like a wild dog once more. If that infernal Kate has given us away, by George, I could go and kill her with my own hand! The cruel, murdering, selfish brute, I believe she'd poison her mother for a ten-pound note!"

"No use swearing at Kate, Jim," I said; "that won't mend matters. It's not the first time by a thousand that I've wished I'd never set eyes on her; but if I'd never seen her that day on St. Kilda beach you'd never known Jeanie. So there's even as well as odds. The thing is, what are we to do now?"

"Dashed if I know. I feel stupid about tackling the bush again; and what can I do with Jeanie? I wish I was dead. I've half a mind to go and shoot that brute of a woman and then myself. But then, poor Jeanie! poor little Jeanie! I can't stand it, Dick; I shall go mad!"

I thought Jim was going to break out crying just as he used when he was a boy. His heart was a big soft one; and though he could face anything in the way of fighting that a man dare do, and do two men's share very like, yet his tears, mother said, laid very near his eyes, and till he was a grown man they used to pump up on all sorts of occasions.

"Come, be a man, Jim," I said, "we've got to look the thing in the face; there's no two ways about it. I shall go to Arizona Bill's claim and see what he says."

Anyhow I'll leave word with him what to do when we're gone. I'd advise you not to try to see Jeanie; but if you will you must, I suppose. Good-bye, old man. I shall make my way over to Jonathan's, borrow a horse from him, and make tracks for the Hollow as soon as I can. You'd better leave Jeanie here and do the same."

Jim groaned, but said nothing. He wrung my hands till the bones seemed to crack, and walked away without a word.

P. O. Box 221,

We knew it was a chance whether we should meet again.

I walked on pretty quick till I came to the flat where Arizona Bill and his mates had their sluicing claim. There were six of them altogether, tall wiry men all of them; they'd mostly been hunters and trappers in the Rocky Mountains before the gold was struck at Sutor's Mill, in the Sacramento Valley. They had been digging in '49 in California, but had come over when they heard from an old mate of a placer diggings at Turon, richer than anything they had ever tried in America.

This camp was half a mile from ours, and there was a bit of broken ground between, so that I thought I was safe in having a word with them before I cleared for Barnes's place, though I took care not to go near our own camp hut. I walked over, and was making straight for the smallest hut, when a rough voice hailed me.

"Hello! stranger, ye came darned near going to h—l with your boots on. What did yer want again that thar cabin?"

I saw then that in my hurry I had gone stumbling against a small hut where they generally put their gold when the party had been washing up and had more than was safe to start from camp with. In this they always put a grizzled old hunter, about whom the yarn was that he never went to sleep, and could shoot anything a mile off. It was thought a very unlikely thing that any gold he watched would ever go crooked. Most people considered him a deal safer caretaker than the escort.

"Oh! it's you, is it?" drawled Sacramento Joe. "Why, what's doin' at yer old camp?"

"What about?" said I.
